DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to the amendment filed 2 September 2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3-5 and 14-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ueno (U.S. Publication 2002/0020870).

Ueno discloses a nonvolatile memory device (Fig. 1) that contains a floating gate (4), a first source/drain region (13-15) having a diode structure employed for controlling the potential of floating gate and a second source/drain region (12) formed to hold a channel region between first source/drain region and second source/drain region, the first source/drain region includes a second conductivity type first impurity region (15) formed on a first layer (1) consisting of a first conductivity type semiconductor, a first conductivity type second impurity region (14/13) formed inside first impurity region, first impurity region is formed on the overall region between the first layer and the second impurity region, the second impurity region includes a first conductivity type third impurity region (14) formed on first layer to be in contact with first impurity region, a fourth impurity region (13) formed by a first conductivity type semiconductor film embedded in third impurity region, the second impurity region is capacitively coupled with floating gate electrode through a first insulator film (3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ueno.

Ueno discloses all the limitations except for a negative voltage applied to the first source/drain region. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply a negative voltage to the first source/drain region since biasing a device is well known in the art to supply current to the device.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 6-13 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
